Fjordline Technologies

Employee Handbook (2026 edition)

1. About the company

Fjordline Technologies AS is a software company headquartered in Trondheim, Norway, founded in 2019. We build data infrastructure and machine learning tooling for the Nordic energy and maritime sectors. As of January 2026 the company employs 84 people across offices in Trondheim, Oslo, and a small remote team in Bergen.

Our mission is to make industrial data useful. We value curiosity, directness, and shipping working software over perfect plans.

2. Working hours and flexibility

Standard working hours are 37.5 hours per week. Core hours, during which all employees are expected to be reachable, are 10:00 to 14:00. Outside of core hours you are free to arrange your schedule as you see fit, provided your work and meetings are covered.

Flexitime is tracked monthly. Up to 40 hours of accumulated flexitime may be carried over into the following month. Overtime must be approved in advance by your team lead.

3. Vacation and leave

All full-time employees are entitled to 25 paid vacation days per calendar year, in line with the Norwegian Holiday Act. Employees over the age of 60 receive an additional 6 days. Vacation days must be requested at least two weeks in advance through the HR portal.

In addition to statutory vacation, Fjordline offers 5 paid 'recharge days' per year that do not require advance notice and are intended for rest or personal matters. Unused recharge days do not carry over to the next year.

Parental leave follows Norwegian law. The company tops up parental benefit to 100 percent of salary for up to 49 weeks of shared leave.

4. Remote work

Employees may work remotely up to 3 days per week by default. Fully remote arrangements are possible for specific roles and must be agreed in writing with your manager and HR. The Bergen team is fully remote.

When working remotely you are expected to be available during core hours and to join scheduled video meetings with your camera on unless otherwise agreed.

5. Equipment and expenses

Every employee receives a company laptop. Engineers may choose between a MacBook Pro and a Linux workstation. You also receive a one-time home-office budget of 8,000 NOK for a desk, chair, and monitor, claimable within your first three months.

Work-related expenses are reimbursed monthly. Submit receipts through the expense portal by the 25th of the month to be included in that month's payroll run. Expenses above 5,000 NOK require pre-approval.

6. Learning and development

Each employee has an annual professional development budget of 15,000 NOK, which may be spent on courses, conferences, books, or certifications relevant to your role. Unused budget does not roll over. The company also runs an internal 'Fjord Friday' session every second Friday afternoon for sharing technical talks.

7. Health, wellbeing and benefits

Fjordline provides private health insurance through Vertikal Helse, a wellness subsidy of 3,000 NOK per year usable on gym memberships or sports equipment, and free fruit and coffee in all offices. An employee assistance programme offering confidential counselling is available to all staff and their immediate families.

8. Code of conduct

We expect everyone to treat colleagues, customers, and partners with respect. Harassment or discrimination of any kind is not tolerated. Concerns can be raised with your manager, with HR, or anonymously through the whistleblowing channel described on the intranet.
